If you want to die just walk carelessly across
the highway.

If you want to see how popular you are try to borrow twenty dollars from your closest friends.

The race to cross the Atlantic ocean will result in the death of a few more aviators this summer.

Short cuts are always sought, but none is more anticipated than that of the proposed highway between New Orleans and the Gulf Coast.

Our extra slice of pie for this week is awarded the man who knows when to sell his old automobile.

Many a man will spend ten dollars foolishly
on his own amusement and then howl over a dollar or two that his wife throws away.

June comes in time to permit those citizens who wish to get their subscriptions paid between May and July a full thirty days time for the operation.

The average girl graduate knows that there are few young men in her home town who are good enough to be worthy of the average girl graduate.

It is said that President Hoover is going to the country over the debenture issue. That is why Congress wants to adjourn, in order to get into the country.

Pass Christian entertained a president of the United States, and the latest is a real prince and princess, nobility unquestioned. Is the social ambition of the Newport of the South surfeited?
Not if we know it.

Advertisers who have nothing to say except "please shop with me," might as well save their money. The merchant who gets returns from his advertising appropriation makes a study of the uses of printer's ink.

The resignation of Mrs. Mabel W. Willebrandt followed published rumors to this effect; but all friction is denied by the officials concerned.
However, it seems that she would have been willing to stay at her post if she had been given full control of the effort to enforce the prohibition law. President Hoover was anxious for her to retain her present post, but unwilling, it is said,
to transfer all enforcement activity to her control.
Shortly after his inauguration leading Republican senators, according to popular report, cautioned the President that if he placed Mrs.
Willebrandt in full control of prohibition enforcement that she would develop trouble aplenty for the party.

READING FOR AN EDUCATION

The Echo would say nothing that might injure the reading habits of the people in Bay St. Louis.
A good book is indeed a good friend and the novel, mystery story or other form of amusement books, fill a use and worthwhile field.
If citizens read them to the exclusion of all other books there is no just cause for condemning the books, but rather the reading habits of our people.

While discussing books we urge our readers, particularly the younger of them, to make a habit of reading, each year, in a serious pursuit of truth, several books that really inform and educate. In the course of the next few weeks we hope to submit, for our readers, a list of ten or twelve such books, which will be recommended to us by one who has done considerable browsing in the book field within the past year.

RESPECT PUBLIC PROPERTY

It is a strange trait of human nature that the man who would appreciate a flower or a pretty shrub in his own yard, and take pride in its beauty, will ruthlessly pluck the natural beauties that grow in profusion and belong to everybody.

Women go into raptures over the exquisite picture of a charming garden, where they sit at a party, without dreaming that by stealing a plant or cutting a flower they would be doing the right thing.

Yet men and women, when passing through the beauties of nature, which grow freely along the trails, or when passing a public square, feel that it is proper for them to take what they want, regardless of the rights of others, or the damage
that they effect to the landscape scene.

It seems to the Echo that we need a little right thinking on this subject.

CANADA'S METHOD

Our neighbor, Canada, seems to have queer notions, according to the big business men of the United States. The Canadian National Railways, owned by the Government, increased its profits in April by more than fifty per cent.
Those who are sure that no Government can run anything successfully can explain this away.

Niagara Falls develops tremendous water power. In the United States it belongs to individuals, but the Canadians on their side own and operate a profitable power company. As a consumer, you may be interested to discover that

IS "TRADE-AT-HOME" BUNK?

WE have been urged time and time again to say something on the subject of "trading at home," and, in the past, very often, we have thrown our thoughts along this line into print.

The idea that "trading at home" is the despairing cry of a provincial settlement, about to lose its growth, is absurd, although there are some citizens in Bay St. Louis who classify it in this wise. You, who have lived in comparatively small towns all your lives, probably believe that "town-boosting" is the exclusive art of the small places, and yet, it is assiduously practiced by all the largest cities of the United States.

In regards to Bay St. Louis it ought to be apparent to every inhabitant that stores here cannot compete with the variety of choice that is offered in great metropolitan centers. However, they can and do compete with them in offering high quality merchandise at comparable prices,
and when our merchants do this they deserve
the support of all loyal inhabitants.

If a local buyer will take into consideration the service that backs up a sale made by a local business house, the immediate delivery effected,
the convenient terms allowed and the courtesy consideration extended, it will be plain that "buying at home" has its advantages. Moreover, merchants in Bay St. Louis can widely extend their stocks when people here create a legitimate demand, and they would be foolish to so before.

We do not wish to prolong this article, and for that reason we forego any development of the general community growth that naturally follows the retention of money in Bay St. Louis but lest some smart reader thinks that it is a fable we promise a further discussion in an early issue.

SAY CHURCHES SHOULD ADVERTISE

The value of advertising has been recognized by the business world which has only material things to sell. The efficacy of advertising as an adjunct to the increase of business is attested by the millions spent every year for this purpose.

Cynics have often wondered why the churches,
professing to represent the most valuable single possession of mankind should be so reluctant to adopt modern methods. Of course, religion in general and Bay St. Louis churches in particular secure practically unlimited publicity from the newspaper serving this community. However, there is much in what Mr. Walter L. Clark, National Director of Publicity for the Presbyterian Church in the United States, has to say on the subject.

At the General Assembly of his church, which closed recently in St. Paul, Minnesota, he urged the liberal use of paid advertising space in the press. We quote him as follows:

"The business world spends millions for publicity where the Church spends dollars. The Church gets a great deal of reading space in the newspapers as legiti-mate news, but the Church has a message for humanity that it could to advantage express in large use of paid advertising space.

"One single brand of cigarettes of the many brands advertised, appropriated $12,500,000 for this year's advertising, half of which is being spent in newspapers alone. The continued expense of regular advertisers demonstrates the newspapers offer the most effective medium of appeal."

"Pioneers in the use of the radio for propaganda rate newspapers as worth ten times the radio appeal and apportion their advertising budgets accordingly."

A SAFETY-FIRST PROGRAM FOR AUTISTS

Speaking over thirty-three radio stations last Saturday Dr. Miller McClintock called attention to the 27,500 deaths in highway accidents in 1928. He stated that nearly one million persons were injured and that the property damage reached $900,000,000.

Surely, if ever the need of a campaign for safety existed, here is the field. Records indicate that almost all accidents are caused by less than five per cent of the drivers, who are "either careless or reckless." So states Dr. Mc-Clintock, thus making out a perfect case for strict inquiry into all accidents and the licensing of drivers. We have urged these measures before every state, and Mississippi should insist upon both of them.

There are now 25,000,000 automobiles in the nation and Dr. McClintock expects 50,000,000 in the future, but he holds out this promising fact, that improvements in cars and highways will make the automobile safer. This has been demonstrated in the past. Deaths in 1928 were only half as many per hundred thousands cars
as they were ten years ago. The increase death list has been caused exclusively by the phenomenal growth in the use of the automobile.

KNOW ABOUT FOODS.

The food industries of the nation are somewhat alarmed over the dieting fad, which is helped along by the demand for sylphlike figures for women. It causes a decrease in food consumption, which is what the business men are interested in.

A campaign is proposed to tell the women
what harm they are doing themselves. Also, that their habits may hurt business. That would be wasting a campaign. The women, if fashion says "slim" are going to be slim, even if it takes a starving diet to make them think they are.

A better idea would be to educate our children about foods. This important subject is too often neglected in schools, and we doubt if there is a school in Hancock County which gives it proper attention. Talking about what the children don't know on the subject of foods brings to mind the conviction that their elders are only slightly better informed.

As one wise man said, not so many years ago, many graves are dug with teeth. Correct eating is important and worth knowing.

The Boy Scout work should have the interest and support of most citizens. There ought to be a troop in every town in the country.

Trading with merchants in Bay St. Louis will help them to keep bigger stocks, more incentive to buy, and a better trading center.

Woman's Common Sense

Mellon Quotes Franklin

Bells To Protect Birds

The Kentucky Derby

Naming a Commission to study law enforcement, President Hoover wisely includes one woman, Dr. Ada L. Constock.

Her experience as an educator will enable her to tell other members that the turn toward crime is taken in childhood.

Furthermore, women's common sense often enables them to take short cuts that men would not find.

Secretary Mellon will not resign.
He himself is authority for that statement.

That is good news for the whole country, particularly good news for President Hoover, who understands business and knows what it means to have in the treasury the ablest business man in America.

Mr. Mellon says, quoting Benjamin Franklin, "I am deficient, I am afraid
in the Christian virtue of resignation."

Virginia Hogan, twelve-year-old Irish-American girl from Omaha, wins the National Spelling Bee. And,
this will surprise you. Teru Hayashi, a Japanese boy, was number four in the competition. "Panacea" eliminated him.

President Hoover's Commission on Prosperity, outlining our gigantic resources, added that Americans had barely scratched the surface of national wealth.

As an efficiency engineer, President Hoover may suggest a way of cutting down waste.

We make a great fuss, as we should,
do, about ten billions lent to Europe,
and we waste that amount every year.

At Riverside, a suburb of Chicago, citizens like cats and birds that do not like each other.

A local ordinance now compels owners to put bells around their cats'
necks to warn and protect birds.

Cats without bells will be executed.

Those that like birds and cannot do without cats will adopt the idea elsewhere.

If acquired characteristics can be inherited, as undoubtedly they can,
after some generations cats will steal
up on the birds without ringing the bell
until the final spring.

The Kentucky Derby was won by a small racehorse named "Clyde Van Dusen" weighing only 835 pounds, driven by reporters "an equine mouse."

The equine mouse, had "Man-O'- War" for a father, and from that father it got energy enabling it to kick mud into the faces of other horses, for a mile and a quarter.

Colonel Lindbergh is discovered,
enjoying himself on a motor boat,
and wearing goggles. It has amused him to "keep the reporters guessing."

Will Rogers celebrates his birthday at Beverly Hills, Cal., and is older than Lindbergh, in years only. He is much younger, generally speaking.
His fame came gradually.

The German problem appears to be settled, actually definitely billions less than they asked for at first.

Monday was King George's birthday, and the world learns with pleasure that his health is better. He is a good man and a good king. To celebrate his sixty-fourth anniversary he change five good Britshers into British peers of the realm.

The power to make noblemen of commoners is a most valuable and economical faculty of royalty.

Read Bacon's letter of advice to King James on the government of Ireland, recommending especially that an Irish nobility be created and a reasonable number knighted.

Human beings like to think they are better than others. Titles in our secret societies prove it. To be called a grand, exalted, supreme something even delights us United States Democrats.

ALUMNI TEAM NOSE OUT VARSITY NINE

The feature of Alumni Day last Sunday at the College was the baseball game between the Varsity and a picked team of the Alumni Association which the latter won by a 6-5 count. Many old stars were in the Alumni lineup, among them: "Wop" Glover, catcher; "Hippo" Phillips; Jimmie LaNasa, pitchers; "Fanny" Martin, first base; Shyra, second base; "Pots" Perce, shortstop; Henry Stechmann, third base; Rodney Bishop, left field; Pete Monteleone, center field; and Dave Keiffer, right field. The Alumni gained a right field. The Alumni gained a one run lead in the first inning and then added five more in the third when the batting order went around with five safe hits. However the Varsity climbed up on them run by run through the closing innings but were unable to gain the one extra counter to deadlock the game. This game closed the season for the Rock-A-Chaws.

Batteries: Stanislaus, Egloff and Cavelier.

Bay St. Louis and Coast fans of boxing will witness on Monday night in the local arena a fine card, featuring Russell Du Bourg, the Whirling Dervish, of New Orleans, vs Little Boy Peterson, the Fighting Tiger of Kiln. This match is slated for 10 rounds and promises excitement and good, clean sport for officially-supervised boxing.

In addition there will be two 4-round preliminaries. These will have to be seen to be appreciated, hence we're not telling it.

This fighting card will be presented at the American Legion arena, Sycamore, near Hancock street, with admission $1.00; ringside seat, $1.50. Ladies, 50 cents; children, 25 cents.

SHERIFF JOS. JONES MOVES INTO NEW HOME

Sheriff Jos. C. Jones and family have moved into their attractive and comfortable new concrete and stucco home on the banks of Pearl River, at Gainesville, slightly west of the main roadway. The home, costing approximately $5,000 was built on a 4-acre plot; nearby there is another piece of the sheriff owns, twenty acres, of some of the finest farming lands in the county.

Sheriff Jones makes the trip practically to and fro and spends much of his time in the county seat, with emergency living headquarters in the building rear of courthouse.

HARRISON COUNTY BOARD SUPERVISORS OPENS SEAWALL BIDS

Lowest Estimate for Construction of Stretch Near Holmhaven is $140,000.

The Harrison County Board of Supervisors met Monday to transact business for the month of June. Bids on furnishing plans and specifications and superintending work on approximately 7000 feet of seawall on the beach near Holmhaven were opened and considered by the board. Estimates on the cost of constructing this piece of wall and roadway were submitted by the different bidders. The minimum estimate given was approximately $140,000 which is considerably more than the funds available for the job at the present time. All bids were laid over for further consideration during the meeting.

Those submitting plans and specifications and an estimate on the cost of construction as well as the percent of cost asked for making plans and superintending the work are as follows: J. L. Whelch, Hattiesburg 5 per cent; Boggs and Chalk, Jackson, 5 per cent; W. F. Hawkins, Gulfport, 4-3-4 per cent.

F. H. McGowan, Ocean Springs, 5 per cent; H. C. R. Shank, Meridian, 3 1-2 per cent; Morgan and Company, Jackson 5 per cent; H. D. Shaw, Gulfport 4-3-4 per cent; Colly Engineering Company, Jackson, 5 per cent; Paul Bonham, Gulfport 3 1-2 per cent.

The board also ordered the game warden to purchase 100,000 white river shrimp to put in Wolf and Biloxi rivers to develop feed for green trout and other game fish in these rivers. The board also decided to establish five fish raising ponds in the county. One of these ponds to be in each beat in the county. These ponds will be used to raise small fish which are brought from hatcheries to protect them from gars and other destroying agencies until they become large enough to care for themselves more efficiently.

Bay St. Louis, Miss., June 2, 1920.

Editor Sea Coast Echo:

A small matter of facts. Maybe of some interest to you.

We came to live in Bay St. Louis in the winter of 1919. A primitive beautiful Riviera, or as I termed it "village." We had moved from a small town of about 3,600 people in North Louisiana, where Col. Lyman had established two banks, at Ruston and Jonesboro. Ruston a R. R. center of Iron Mountain and Southern Pacific R. R., Cotton Seed Oil Mill, and Sawmill. No side walks or paved streets. A country town—they had a good brick postoffice and carrier service for ten years before we left. The senator was Mr. Ransdell, Mr. Aswell Congressman.

The want of postal service here was a great inconvenience to us. I made up my mind to have it. Wrote the Postmaster General and asked for it. He said there was no paved streets and no numbered houses, the numbering of the houses was done later. I replied by referring to Ruston's want of such conveniences. While they had had carrier service for ten years—that nothing walked here but four legged animals. He would kindly consider most requests, as I should continue to bring it to his attention until granted.

Then drew the matter to the attention of Senator Pat Harrison, the result being the Rural Service, and later what you have in the business section now. That is the history and facts as to carrier service in Bay St. Louis. I understand there is talk to move the P. O. to the L. & N. Depot. May benefit the R. R. possibly, but with the business houses of the town who need it where it is. I may interview the Postmaster General once more to prevent such a mistake.

With highest regards,
I am very truly,
MRS. W. B. LYMAN.

He stopped in amazement as he saw our group.

"You've got a lot of prisoners, isn't you?" he commented.

"These aren't all prisoners," the colonel explained hastily. "There's only one."

He led the way to Bill who, trussed up in his chair, had fallen asleep peacefully.

The entire situation was explained to the sheriff while he peeled off a layer or two of clothing and revealed himself as a small old man, with watery blue eyes and considerable foliage in front of his face. His beard was white, except where it was stained with tobacco-juice.

"If you don't mind," said the sheriff, "we won't go back until morning. It's storming so hard out now that I doubt if we could get through. I'll just put my horse in the stable."

"You Can't," said the colonel. "The stable is burnt up."

A compromise was effected by quartering the horse in the cellar. As it happened, there was an outside runway leading to the basement down which supplies were usually wheeled in trucks. After considerable persuasion the horse was induced to negotiate this and was tied to a post in one of the small storerooms below.

That done, the colonel assigned us quarters for the night. Fortunately there were enough vacant rooms so that each of the ladies could have an apartment, while we men were billeted on cots in the general dormitory where most of the veterans slept.

CHAPTER III.

"Help!"

Mrs. Hemmingway refused to retire until her husband came. I offered to sit up with her but she declined vehemently.

"You know what John would think if he found you and me sitting up alone together," she explained.

I agreed with her heartily, so we fixed a good warm fire in the stove and left her alone to welcome her spouse. It would be only a few hours until morning, and I did not bother to undress, but threw myself exhausted on my cot.

I did not sleep, however. The storm outside was making a continuous racket around the eaves and corners of the building that nearly drowned the chromatic snorts of the veterans.

The excitement of the evening still kept my blood racing and my eyes at high tension. I listened for the opening of the door which would indicate that Mr. Hemmingway had arrived.

The somnous slumbers of the country's ex-defenders began to my temper. What right had everybody to sleep while I struggled in vain to woo Morphous?

I might have become accustomed to a regular snore, but there was one—Comrade Pike Henwether, for a dollar—who gurgled in his sleep. The exasperating part about it was that he didn't do it all the time. Only occasionally above the diapason of his snores came this unearthly gurgle, as if dishwater were disappearing down their lowest ebb.

Mrs. Hemmingway was walking up and down frantically screaming, "Help!" every time the thumping and moaning would reoccur.

Suddenly she saw me as I advanced out of the darkness. As she did an almost inarticulate cry of desperation escaped her lips and she pitched forward a full minute. It was almost a relief when he burst forth again.

Something had disarranged his timbre, "If you don't mind," said the sheriff, "we won't go back until morning. It's storming so hard out now that I doubt if we could get through. I'll just put my horse in the stable."

"You Can't," said the colonel. "The stable is burnt up."

The somnous slumbers of the country's ex-defenders began to walk in just now and find her in your arms at four o'clock in the morning! I only thought it was you! In reality it was some one else and you were up in your own room fast asleep!"

To emphasize his remarks he hauled off with his right arm, which I had carelessly allowed to escape me, and belted me energetically in the ear.

I don't know what might have happened further between us but we had not been separated by a willing assortment of half-dressed old gentlemen.

"Stop this racket," shouted the sheriff, displaying his star conspicuously. "I represent the law and order around here and I'm going to have peace!"

I was dragging off from Hemmingway's sunshoes. We stood glaring at one another. It is impossible instantly to forget a ringing blow on the ear, I find, even if it is delivered by a very good friend. On his side I suppose that his resentment toward me was at least partially justified by appearance. It was hard to think of those things just then, however, and as a matter of fact, I didn't.

"Good morning, Mr. Hemmingway," greeted Jim Cooper, arriving in what I thought at first was an abbreviated sleeping-garment, but which I later discovered was his Greek tunic. "Glad you got here at last. Why—what the deuce?"

His glance had rested on the prostrate form of Mrs. Hemmingway.

"Mrs. Hemmingway fainted," I explained.

"Oh, I see," he considered thoughtfully. "I suppose it's all for the best. I imagine that is the only way any one could get any rest in this institution."

Evenly Jim had noticed the snoring too.

Mrs. Hemmingway opened her beautiful eyes.

"Oh, John," she exclaimed joyfully as she recognized her husband even in a derby hat and snowshoes.

He made no move to respond to the entreaty in her voice.

"Why, what's the matter?" she pleaded.

"You know very well," he returned savagely. "When I arrived I found you in Tom Bilbeck's arms."

"Me?" she said interrogatively. "Impossible. It must have been Maryella you saw."

"It was not," hastily disclosed a voice in the rear of the group.

My heart sank. I was in hopes that I would be spared Maryella's participation in this scene.

"I don't know what happened," Mrs. Hemmingway went on, slightly bewildered, "but I'm sure that I can explain everything."

While they were talking the floor trembled violently and there was a muffled crash beneath us. Soon followed a prolonged breaking of glass as if a brick chimney had fallen through a skylight.

While we stood embracing one another in a deadlock a low moan escaped the lips of Mrs. Hemmingway.

"Haven't you better take care of your wife?" I panted, apprehensive lest she roll off the table.

"You seem to be able and willing to do that," he hissed vindictively.

"You're a home-wrecker!"

"You're mistaken," I retorted hastily.

"Of course," he sneered. "I didn't

Some one had been thoughtful enough to bring the lamp from the table. By its light we discovered a wreck that immovably describes the nest to which we had tied the chandelier. It had been torn out bodily and a tier of shelves con-

ECHOES OF WEEK FROM ST. STANISLAUS COLLEGE

St. Stanislaus College was host on Sunday last to 168 Alumni. The occasion was the celebration of the annual Alumni Day, now a fixture in the college for the past several years. The day was opened at 11:00 o'clock with a special alumni mass celebrated in Our Lady of the Gulf Church by Rev. Father Leo Fahey of Class '14.

Immediately after mass the grads returned to the college where new officers were elected. The officers-elect are as follows: Brother Peter, honorary president; John Claverie, Class '71, president; Louis Jacob, Class '76, 1st vice-president; Linden Breaux, Class '04; 2nd vice-president; Guy Ross, Class '07, 3rd vice-president; Justin Green, Class '08, treasurer; A. G. Favre, Class '16 secretary; Father Leo Fahey, Class '14, chaplain.

The election of officers was followed by the reception of Class '29 into the Alumni Association. When this was over, the old grads were entertained for half an hour by the College orchestra, conducted by Brother Oliver.

At 12:45 everybody repaired to the college dining hall for the alumni banquet prepared by Brother Cyran.

Rev. Father Fahey acted as toast master. Several speeches were made during the course of the dinner. Robert L. Genin, Leo W. Seal, Charles J. Tassin, '28 for the old graduates, Marshall Ballard, Jr., '29, spoke in behalf of Class '29. After the banquet a baseball game was played on the green, between the present Rock-a-Chaw team and a team made up of old graduates. The old students showed us that they hadn't forgotten the style of ball they used to play at St. Stanislaus, by taking the game 6 to 5.

Pictures of the graduates were taken last week by the Harvey Photographers of New Orleans.

The closing exercises of St. Stanislaus College will be held next Sunday morning at 11:00 o'clock. The College orchestra will open the program playing selections from Bohemian Girl. The orchestra will also play several other numbers during the exercises. At the beginning of the school term last September, Brother Peter announced to the graduates that the boy in each of the Scientific and Commercial courses, having the highest average for the mid-term examination, and the boy in each of the Scientific and Commercial courses presenting the highest number of merits for the whole year, would all four be considered on an equal standing and would have a right to compete for the valedictory and salutatory. Consequently, last week Walter Leonhard, commercial and Winfield Partridge, scientific, showing the highest averages, and David Gray, commercial, and Marshall Ballard, scientific, having the highest number of merits possible for the year, drew for the honors. Walter Leonhard drew the salutatory, while Winfield Partridge drew the valedictory. David Gray, will speak an essay, historical of the College, while Marshall Ballard will talk on reminiscences of St. Stanislaus. Rev. Father Florence D. Sullivan, president of Loyola University, New Orleans, will address the graduates. Following these speeches will be the awarding of diplomas to the graduates and the awarding of medals.

Work and Play at S. J. A.

Can it be possible that a whole year's work should be finished and that we have really come to the last week of school?

We have been wishing for it all year and now that it has finally come why is it that we are not quite so joyful as we thought we would be and while rejoicing that we can put Latin and Math and History and English away for three whole months—why is it that some sad thoughts persist in tugging at our heart strings?

Well we must admit it we do hate to say good-bye to old S. J. A., and the teachers who worked so persistently with us during the year.

Then when we meet again next September we will be minus seven of the dearest girls we have ever known. While bidding them adieu we wish to tell them that in the garden of our hearts, memories of them will ever remain fresh and sweet, and that we are begging God's blessings on them and their endeavors wherever the newer and wider sphere of life, which they are now entering, happens to take them.

Children of Mary Athletic Picnic.

The Children of Mary and Gold Jays and Red Jays combined their forces Tuesday for a picnic which was given at Henderson Point—and such a picnic as it proved to be—all declare that it was the best ever. From start to finish we spent a most delightful day. Many had left home with the intention of keeping out of the water for fear of being sunburned, but the water proved so alluring and drew all, one by one into its coolness. We are paying for it now with blistered arms and backs, but it was worth the fun, and we are glad to pay the penalty for the fun which our last get-together afforded us.

Senior Class S. J. A. Banquet.

The Seniors have been feted almost daily during the past two weeks by their many friends but from no affair could they have possibly derived more pleasure than from the farewell dinner afforded them by their Alma Mater Sunday afternoon.

The center table in the refectory had been literally transformed into a bower of sweet peas, maroon and white. A pond on which floated five white and two maroon swans bearing in their bills each girl's prophecy—formed the unique and attractive center piece. A delicious seven course dinner carried throughout in the class colors, was served.

At the close of the dinner the girls presented their farewell gift to Mother Claire—seven gold pieces caught in the meshes of a tiny basket ball goal, for Class '29 wishes the money they have given to be used to supply the Basket Ball goals in the new S. J. A. Gym.

Farewell to Our P. B. D.

The members of the P. B. D. gave a very delightful party to Thelma Lee Dyess, one of their members, at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

The table decorated with the P. B. D. colors presented a beautiful effect in each member presented a lovely gift to Thelma Lee.

The P. B. D. do not wish to call this a farewell party for they hope to see Thelma Lee often during the next session. This little party was simply an expression of their regret at the loss of such a sweet member and their fond "au revoir" to her.

IN SAME BOX

A white man boarded a box car at Brookhaven. So did a negro. It was the same car. The white man had fifty cents. The negro had a gun. Soon the negro had a gun and fifty cents. Off the car jumped the white man, went back to Brookhaven and complained to police. They said they could do him no good, not even reward him his fifty cents.

JUST BEE CAUSE

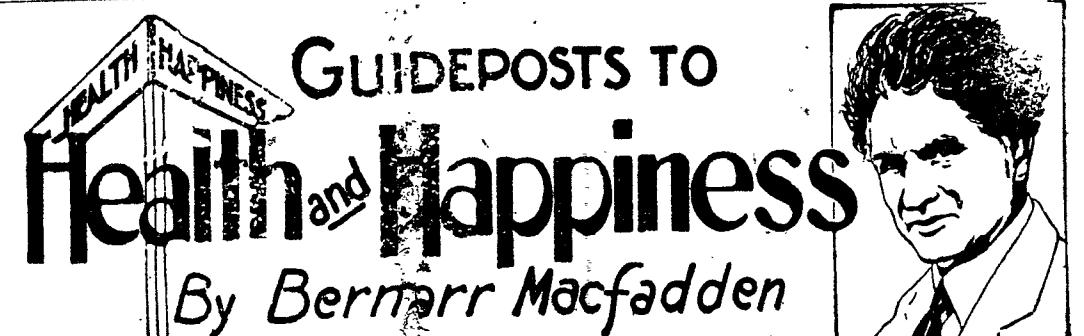

H. B. Parks, his wife and sister-in-law buzzed along the highway near Oxford. A little cloud appeared in the road ahead of them, came rapidly closer. Against their windows suddenly spattered hundred of bees. Excited, the bees swarmed into the car. Out swarmed Parks and, fled to the woods.

Rev. J. H. Dubois, 89, Le county, had never seen Mrs. Lucy Thomas, 71, widow. One day he heard of her, wrote her a note asking if he might come over. She answered "Yes," answered "Yes" again when he proposed three hours later. They were married next day.

OVERCOMING BALDNESS

There has always been much speculation as to why men grow bald and lose their hair quicker than women do. I do not believe there is any one particular reason. Rather, it is an accumulation of causes.

Probably, the reason women are less apt to lose their hair than men is because their longer hair, pulling on the roots, exercises the muscles and thereby stimulates the growth.

If you are losing your hair, the first thing to look to is your general physical condition. If you are run down you must build yourself up through proper exercise, diet, physical and mental rest. If you do not feel that you are below par, then you must search for local causes.

Among the many local causes of falling hair and baldness are several parasitic diseases, such as "ringworm," where round patches appear on the scalp. The germs of this disease are embedded so deeply in the roots that it is extremely difficult to cure it. "Favus," which consists of golden yellow scales on the scalp is another. Ordinary dandruff, which interferes with the nourishment of the hair, is still another.

Fever will also cause baldness, or any wasting disease will also cause falling hair, because Nature has given all her attention to the more important parts of the body.

The continual cutting which men's hair receives is sometimes blamed for baldness. It is not however the cutting which is to blame, but the dirty scissors, comb, brush, finger, tails and hands of the barber which, if put under a microscope, would reveal millions of dandruff germs.

One of the most reasonable explanations for early baldness in men is the constant wetting of hair. Little boys are taught early to soak their hair with water so that it will look neat and stay put. Most hair, when wet too much, snaps off and cracks easily. On the other hand, infrequent washing is just as bad, unless particular attention is paid to keeping the scalp clean. A dirty scalp fails to nourish the hair. In summer, when the head perspires and tends to rot the hair, a shampoo once a week is necessary.

There is no better stimulant to the growth of hair than massaging and brushing, both of which induce circulation and impart lustre. But care must be taken to keep the brushes free from particles of dandruff and dust.

In massaging the scalp, plenty of "elbow grease" is needed. A pliable massage is of little value, while the vigorous massage is invaluable.

The entire scalp should be pinched and kneaded with a circular motion until every portion of it is soft and flexible and moves freely. A gentle but firm pulling of the hair improves its strength. In certain European countries where women grow their hair for commercial purposes, it is said that they hang for a certain length of time each day by their hair, thus producing phenomenally rapid growth.

The application of hot and cold towels is a splendid stimulant, but care should be taken to dry the hair thoroughly afterward. Absolutely clean towels should be used.

If the scalp is naturally dry, olive oil or coconut oil is a good substitute. The hair should be parted and the oil applied directly to the scalp and not allowed to run down the hair. A superfluous amount of oil soon becomes rancid and catches dust.

It must be understood that once the hair root is gone, no remedy on Earth will cause a new hair to grow from it. But if it is treated correctly when it begins to crack, baldness can be avoided.

DAIRYING AND ITS ENEMY THE CATTLE TICK, IS SUBJECT OF PRIZE ESSAY

Miss Norma Gex, Bay Hi School, is Winner Among Members of Her Class—Composition Contest Under Auspices Interstate Trust and Banking Co., of New Orleans.

For many years the Interstate Trust and Banking Company of New Orleans has offered a prize to the members of the graduating class in each of the High Schools in Mississippi for the best essay on a given subject of public interest.

This year the subject was "Dairying and its Enemy the Cattle Tick."

Miss Norma Gex of this year's graduating class in the Central High School in Bay St. Louis, was the winner among the members of her class. Miss Gex is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Gex.

The composition follows:

Dairying today is in its infancy. Since most of the timber in our state has been cut away, we must turn to another industry and the most profitable and best suited seems to be dairying. Some counties are already flourishing in this but many are slow and far behind, due to the ignorance of its possibilities and the proper way to eradicate the cattle tick. The farmers about Starkville are getting from one factory alone as much as $165,000 a month for milk. And it isn't only the big dairy farms that are benefiting. Men drive in all kinds of vehicles, even old buggies, with a half car or a single car of milk. But before long their herds will be increased and they, too, will become important producers.

The twenty three creameries and one factory which are now flourishing in Mississippi brought 36,000,000 lbs. of milk worth $2.40 per 100 pounds in one year from farmers in Mississippi tick free areas.

If some of the counties are prospering, why shouldn't all of them? Dairying has possibilities which can not be measured in dollars and cents and can be made very profitable to the entire state.

What then is its enemy? What is keeping some counties from prospering? The answer is the cattle tick—this little parasite which draws blood from the cattle and carries a germ that causes tick fever.

In Louisiana the tick is. Because of it, she still has to import yearly $30,000,000 of dairy products from outside states. So many counties are still backward in tick eradication, suffering themselves and being unneighboring to all adjacent tick free territory that the chief explanation must be that the individual tick is so small—seemingly so insignificant—that people just can't realize the terrific damage that the billions of ticks do collectively.

His plan would bar "all alcoholic products of distillation" but would permit the control, manufacture and sale of all malt, brewed and fermented beverages by the states within their own borders.

All four of the prize winning plans

agreed upon the present impracticability of repealing or amending the eighteenth amendment, the award committee announced. The plans further agreed "specifically or by implication, in the desirability of returning to the states the fullest measure of control, especially in the matter of light wines and beer."

Justice Hoyt expressed his opinion that the 18th amendment cannot be replaced for many years to come. He drew a distinction between distilled and fermented liquors, saying that distillation is the act of man and has been responsible for practically all of the evils which "liquor" has inflicted upon the human race, while fermentation is the act of nature, and that to many must seem, in the most reverential sense, the act of God."

His plan would bar "all alcoholic products of distillation" but would permit the control, manufacture and sale of all malt, brewed and fermented beverages by the states within their own borders.

All four of the prize winning plans

agreed upon the present impracticability of repealing or amending the eighteenth amendment, the award committee announced. The plans further agreed "specifically or by implication, in the desirability of returning to the states the fullest measure of control, especially in the matter of light wines and beer."

Justice Hoyt added the statement, "goes directly to the heart of the problem of making possible the return of light wines and beers under state control and retaining federal prohibition of distilled spirits. Under a workable definition of the words 'intoxicating liquor' as contained in the eighteenth amendment."

Ticks on the cattle may be destroyed by using a tick destroying agent as arsenic. The best and most economical means of applying this tick destroying solution is the dipping vat.

It has a large advantage over spraying and applications by hand as the thoroughness obtained by the dipping vat and the treatment thereof is practically assured. However, in isolated districts where the dipping vat is not available the hand spray and applications will be found, through necessity, to be very useful agents of tick eradication.

Paste-rotation may also be used as a method of destroying the tick where it is impossible to carry the infested cattle to vats. The combination of the two methods of destroying the tick, i.e., the dipping vat and pasture rotation will be found to be the ultimate in tick eradication.

After cattle have been dipped they should be transferred from the field where they became infested to a tick free one. By this means not only the cattle but also the fields, in a course of time, will be freed.

Since the tick is the principal cause for the backwardness of the dairying industry, every precaution should be taken to keep tick free sections from becoming infested and also to make those sections unfortunately infected with ticks.

SATURDAY NIGHT BRIDGE CLUB

Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Seaford were host and hostess Saturday night at their home in Sycamore street to the two-table bridge club that meets every Saturday evening, and which has been a source of much enjoyment to the eight members.

Mrs. Buckley was the lucky holder of the high score and Mr. Kenneth W. Pepperdene held second.

SWIMMING PARTY

One of the most delightful parties given in honor of the senior class of St. Joseph's Academy was a swimming party and luncheon complimentary to Miss Hazel Kergosien on Monday afternoon by Miss Vera Cuevas at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Geo. A. Cuevas of Fenton, Miss.

The class motored to Fenton and hurriedly donned their bathing suits for a refreshing swim and a row boat ride up the scenic Jordon river; upon their return to the Cuevas' home a tempting two-course luncheon was served on the veranda facing the river.

Dainty handkerchiefs wrapped in tissue paper and tied with the class colors to represent a diploma served as a place card and favor.

The class was delighted with the unique party.

BEACH PARTY

A delightful party was given in honor of Class '29 S. J. A. by Misses E. Powers, Margaret Larose and Helene Kergosien of Bay St. Louis, and Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Cuevas, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Herren and Mr. Walter O' Cuevas of Pass Christian.

LUNCHEON BRIDGE

The Junior Class of St. Joseph's Academy entertained most graciously on last Saturday at the home of Mrs. Winfield Partridge in honor of Class '29 of St. Joseph Academy.

A three course luncheon was served following a game of bridge, high score being won by Miss Thelma Lee Dyess, second score by Miss Kathleen Renshaw, low score by Miss Ida Kate Allingham.

A dance handkerchief of Georgette and ecru lace in pastel shades to match the graduation dress of each senior was given as a favor.

The Juniors are to be congratulated as most gracious hostesses.

BANQUET AT S. J. A.

The senior class of St. Joseph Academy was delightfully entertained at a banquet given in their honor last Sunday.

The Sisters of St. Joseph, hostesses, arranged most tastefully their spacious dining room, using the class flowers, sweet peas.

They also carried to the most minute detail the colors of the class, Maroon and White.

The retail grocery business of Bugno Brothers, operated in Gulfport for the last 23 years, once on 28th avenue, but in later years in its present quarters at 13th street and 27th avenue, was acquired Saturday by the Mississippi Coast Grocery Company, Inc., operators of the Jitney, Jungle and Clarence Saunders chain stores on the Coast. The Mississippi Coast Grocery Company also owns the Bay St. Louis Jitney-Jungle Store, and purchase of this important Gulfport unit is an indication of the growth of business and expansion of the firm's operations.

—C. C. McDonald, president-elect Bay Rotary Club, has returned home from Dallas, Texas, where he attended the convention of International Rotary, and expresses much satisfaction over the fact of attending a three-day session where the deliberations were so constructive and of world-wide interest. He says the periodical rains of each day only helped to freshen the atmosphere and defeat the other wise stifling heat. Dallas is a great city, he said, and the spirit of doing things and putting big projects over and the pep and cordiality of the people are the greater factors that contribute to the city.

—Mr. Leo Ford, head of the Bay Chevrolet Company, has discarded his crutches and is walking with the aid of a cane, which, too, he will be able to discard shortly. Mr. Ford was the victim of a peculiar accident some two months since—one which came near costing him the loss of a foot. A car jacked in his garage slipped a cog, so to speak, and smashed the toe of a foot, part of which had to be amputated, saving the foot by narrow margin.

—Graduation exercises both at St. Stanislaus College and St. Joseph's Academy attract many visitors and this year will be no exception. Academy exercises Saturday and college commencement Sunday following, the former is already every reason for belief many visitors will come to Bay St. Louis. The Hotel Weston has many reservations for the week-end. Both institutions have a wide prestige and attract many each year—in fact, in increasing numbers.

—Mrs. R. N. Blaize, Miss Julia Blaize, accompanied by Prof. S. J. Ingram, superintendent of the city schools, returned home a few evenings since from a motor trip to Tuscaloosa, where they attended commencement exercises at University of Alabama, of which Miss Regina Blaize, young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Blaize, is a member of class '29, and returned with the party.

Herman Ingram, son of Prof. and Mrs. Ingram, is a member of the student body, who also returned home.

NOTICE

This is to give notice to the public that I am no longer connected with the Bay Merchandise Company, due to the fact that I was compelled to pay for a bill of goods sold to a customer, (a negro woman), although said customer had a charge account. Said amount being deducted from my salary.

I want to thank those who have been so generous in my other community work, and those that have volunteered their services to my friends when in the community.
